Ray Hawkins, groundskeeper on the West Texas State University campus, is the only fellow around who can get the attention of this little squirrel, which is raising a family just outside the education building. Here, Hawkins gives the mother squirrel a chunk of dog food to coax her down from her perch.

She munches, still unsure of the interloping photographer, Andy Hester.

But, finally she takes the short run to Hawkins for more goodies.

Opinions asked on legality of annex

Attorney general opinions rendered previously have been requested by Randall County Dist. Atty. George Dowlen to expedite some kind of conclusion to contentions by an Amarillo television station that construction of a South Amarillo courthouse annex would be illegal.

Dowlen said he has not requested a specific attorney general opinion on whether or not the circumstances of the annex construction are legal because preparation of an opinion on the local case could take longer than the two weeks remaining before bids are opened for the project.

He said other legal opinions might point to an answer on the legality of the construction and perhaps might even contain a case which has direct bearing on the current annex hassle.

The Amarillo TV station originally contended in March that construction of the annex as planned would violate Texas law.

The county's bond attornies said at that time they believed the construction to be legal.

The station renewed its attack last week and spurred Dowlen's request for the attorney general opinions.

Dowlen said Friday other annexes have been constructed around the state and attorney general opinions should be available from those efforts.

He said his office will be concerned particularly with answers to questions dealing with what county offices can be legally placed in a courthouse annex, the amount of money which can be spent to build an annex.

Dowlen said he will make available the opinions to the commissioners court when he receives them — hopefully before July 1 when commissioners are to open bids for the construction.

"In the event the attorney general opinions we receive do not fully answer all the questions to the satisfaction of everyone, then we will proceed with a request for an attorney general opinion specifically on these points," Dowlen said.

The district attorney said he talked by telephone with the Dallas bond attorney firm which is handling the financing legal work for construction of the $300,000 annex building.

He said the bond attorney "advised me he was not familiar with all the intended uses of the annex.

"However, based on what he does know, he feels the financing would be legal."

County Judge Woody Pond said Friday commissioners will proceed under the assumption the construction project is legal until they are told differently by someone with legal knowledge.

The Amarillo television station contends through a legal brief allegedly prepared by their attorney that commissioners cannot construct an annex for more than $200,000 if the annex is to house a county tax assessor's branch office, a sheriff's branch office and an office for the justice of the peace.

The brief contends that commissioners can build an annex office for the county tax assessor with a ceiling of $1 million.

But, it says, they cannot include the other offices in such a building.

Pond said he's sure the commissioners will come up with other plans for the building if the attorney general opinions render the project illegal.

Commissioners since last fall have been planning construction of the annex on a plot of ground north of the Canyon Expressway and on Georgia Street in South Amarillo.

They have told Architect Art Vaughan to keep costs within the $300,000 maximum.

Plans have been completed and commissioners approved the advertisement for bids for the construction at their Monday meeting last week.

They are to award a contract on the construction July 8.

Expenses outweigh income in '73

County again exceeds revenues

Randall County Commissioners spent nearly $150,000 more in 1973 than they took in through various tax monies and fees, the recently completed official audit indicates.

In doing so, commissioners further depleted an unencumbered balance which during the 1960s totalled well over $500,000.

And this in spite of the fact the county collected the most taxes in its history during 1973 — more even than the banner tax year of 1968.

The audit report for 1973 was prepared during the spring by the Amarillo accounting firm of Doshier, Pickens and Francis and was turned over to commissioners more than a week ago for perusal.

The report indicates the county took in $1,194,743 through ad valorem taxes and fees and fines, but spent $1,327,449. The totals do not include federal revenue sharing funds.

Preliminary figures indicate the county has an unencumbered balance, not including revenue sharing or other encumbered funds, of less than $200,000.

For the past few years, in fact since commissioners voted a reduction in taxes in the late 1960s, commissioners have been forced to dip into their funds balance to pay operating expenses at a rate of more than $100,000 per year in some cases.

The audit report indicates that during 1973, the county assessed taxes totalling $685,988. No collection figure was available in the audit report, but historically the county collects about 96% of the assessed taxes.

The tax figure is the highest assessment in county history, even shadowing a major tax year of 1968 when assessed taxes totalled $669,657.

The assessed tax figure was nearly $40,000 above the 1972 figure of $647,878.

Other major income sources were auto registration fees which totalled about $175,000 and tax office fees which totalled about $110,000.

The audit indicates commissioners spent less than they budgeted in the way of disbursements for the fiscal year. Actual disbursements totalled $1,327,449 while budgeted disbursements totalled $1,451,952.

The audit indicates commissioners spent just over half the anticipated budget figure of $628,000 in the operation of the road and bridge department. They spent $385,000 during 1973 for the road and bridge operation.

But, the audit also reveals the county spent almost twice as much in general operation than was budgeted. General operation expenses totalled $320,400 while commissioners had budgeted $184,000 for that item.

Salaries took the big bite out of the disbursement picture for 1973 with $434,000 actually spent.

The audit reveals general operations expenses were upped considerably by hikes in insurance rates and in a large expenditure for office supplies, printing and other items.

The county finished the year with a balance of $4,532 in the general revenue sharing fund, money taken in from the federal government.

Commissioners during 1973 spent a large part of their federal revenue to purchase land for construction of a new South Amarillo courthouse annex. The audit indicates they had $212,844 avail-

'TEXAS' opens Wednesday nite with special events before show

Opening night of the 9th season of "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon will be as big as ever with more pomp and special events than in previous years.

The big night is Wednesday at Pioneer Amphitheatre.

An early season report from "TEXAS" manager Raymond Raillard indicates feared fuel shortages and high gasoline prices will not keep travelers away from the musical-drama.

"I believe they're going to travel in spite of the shortage," Raillard said.

He said reservations and notifications of large tour arrangements are flowing into the show box office at a rate comparable if not better than last year, when a record crowd viewed the nightly show.

Margaret Harper, public relations manager for "TEXAS," said the Wednesday night performance is not yet sold out and a few seats in the front of the outdoor theatre are still available.

The first show of the season is always a spectacular event at the amphitheatre and this year should be better than ever with two special activities scheduled.

Winners of the railroad art contest will be named and honored during pre-show ceremonies. And, 21 towns and 8 counties will receive official recognition as American bicentennial communities in other ceremonies.

The pre-show activities begin at 8 p.m. on the canyon floor.

Three category winners will be named in the railroad art contest, one each in photography, pen and ink and paintings. A best of show winner will also be named.

The winning pictures and paintings will hang in the foyer of the theatre during the show for crowd perusal.

Several railway company officials will be on hand for the contest results. F. N. Stuppi, general manager of the Santa Fe Railway in Amarillo, will attend the opening night along with D. F. Newberry, assistant vice president of the Rock Island Railroad, and Jay Taylor, representing the Burlington lines.

Following the naming of the winners of the railway contest, 30 cities and counties will receive their official flags as bicentennial communities in conjunction with the American Revolution Bicentennial Committee's national efforts.

Representatives from each city and county to be honored will be presented the official flags.

Joe Dobal and John Nolan, representatives of the national ARBC, will be on hand for the presentations as will Dr. Shirley Abbott, regional director for the ARBC, and Mrs. Gene Brownrigg and John Anderson of the Texas ARBC committee.

Dean Kelly, Amarillo entertainer, will be emcee for the presentations.

The 9th season of the musical-drama-under-the-stars will begin at 8:30 p.m. when the dancers and singers of the company take the stage.

Leading actors in the production include Don Mitchell Washburn as Calvin Armstrong,

Amarillo man killed in electrocution incident

A 45-year-old Amarillo man was electrocuted about 11:30 a.m. Friday in an accident at the Jake Diel gravel pit operation west of Canyon on the Lindsey Ranch.

Forrest D. Carter of Amarillo, was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Dudley Moore, Canyon physician.

Sheriff Cliff Longest said Carter was driver of a large dump truck at the gravel pit.

He said Carter had driven his truck onto the pit area and was raising the bed on the truck. He got out of the truck cab and was standing against the back of the bed when the rising end came into contact with a 13,000 volt high line.

Funeral services for Carter are pending with Schooler-Gordon Funeral Directors of Amarillo. Local arrangements were by LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Ordinance calling for city hall bids could be misunderstood, city says

Canyon City Commissioners passed an ordinance Thursday night during special session which they say could be misinterpreted and clarified the ordinance wording, stressing they stick by their promise not to raise taxes to build a new city hall complex.

The ordinance allows the city to advertise for bids for construction of a new city hall, estimated to cost around $1.3 million. It also declares the city's intention to have available for issue $1.4 million in certificates of obligation to pay for interim financing of the building construction.

The notice to bidders, which will appear in next Sunday's Canyon News and again the following Sunday, could be misinterpreted by local readers, commissioners said Thursday night after reviewing the notice.

Bids for the construction are to be opened July 10 at 2 p.m. at the community center.

The wording which concerned commissioners in the notice to bidders states:

"Notice of intention to issue certificates of obligation, Series 1974, in the maximum principal amount of $1,400,000 for the purpose of constructing a municipal building complex and that such obligations shall be payable from the levy and collection of ad valorem taxes of the City. . ."

Commissioners feared residents might misinterpret the section of the notice and might feel the city planned to raise taxes to pay for the construction.

Mayor Manly Bryan said commissioners decided to authorize the issuance of up to $1.4 million in certificates of obligation because that amount would be a maximum needed to cover all anticipated costs of construction.

He said the certificates of obligation will be used as interim financing, a method which would substantially decrease the cost to the city for interest charges for interim financing for construction through more conventional methods.

The certificates of obligation will only be issued, he said, for completed work payments.

In the meantime, city funds will be invested in certificates of deposit and will draw interest payments in those investments.

Mayor Bryan said it was with the advice of Bob Davis of Columbian Securities, financial

Survey to eye consumer habits and attitudes about merchants

A survey much like the one Chamber of Commerce directors tried to finance several months ago here is now being conducted by a graduate student who said he's experienced in survey work.

Lt. Col. James W. Hanks, formerly with the ROTC unit at West Texas State University and now studying to earn a masters degree there, is conducting the survey as a part of his master's thesis.

The survey conducted by Hanks would correspond closely to the type survey local chamber officials were unable to finance earlier this spring for the city.

Hanks has mailed questionnaires to three major segments of the Canyon and Randall County community to measure their opinions as well as their shopping habits.

When completed, sometime in early July, Hanks will forward a copy of his thesis and the survey results to the city commission and the chamber of commerce for their use.

Overall, the Hanks thesis will concern the economic base of Canyon in terms of the impact of agriculture, WTSU, tourism, population and industry on growth in the base.

Hanks said the surveys will be just a part of the overall thesis, but should be of considerable interest to the local chamber and local merchants.

Hanks said he feels the surveys are conducted under accepted polling techniques and will accurately reflect the feelings of those who are in business, those who live in Canyon and those who live in rural Randall County.

Three separate surveys have been mailed to local residents and those in the county for completion and return for compilation.

One set of surveys has gone to residential householders within the Canyon city limits. Another set has been mailed to persons living in rural areas. And, the

With 400 acres of weeds and volunteer wheat stubble, Buffalo Lake Manager Paul Ferguson eyes a sprouting grain sorghum plant. The south end of the lake is studded with new sorghum plants recently seeded by some area farmers.

Soggy sod seeded sorghum surpasses southern stalks

The irony of their situation no doubt eludes the four farmers who have taken on the chore of raising a sorghum crop in the waterless bottom of Buffalo Lake.

They are the victims of one of those immutable laws of the universe, a law somewhat akin to the law which says that that which can go wrong will go wrong at the wrong time.

Earlier this spring, the farmers agreed with Lake Manager Paul Ferguson to plant about 400 acres of the dry lake bottom in summer sorghum.

They disced the soil at the very southern end of the lake, that portion which for years has been the nesting and wintering ground for thousands of ducks and geese, in preparation for planting and to help kill weeds which have a tendency to grow on anything.

Then, later, the seed was spread via airplane over the 400-acre tract.

Ferguson said the plane seeded the 400 acres and then in a final swoop over the lake, spread sorghum seed in a swatch one-half acre wide and about a half mile long down the very center of the more northern portion of the dry bed.

In compliance with that immutable universal law, the 400-acre patch of sorghum is now covered with a sea of green — green weeds — and a small undercovering of fingerlet-size sorghum plants.

The half-acre by half-mile swatch, however, is booming without weeds.

Ferguson said the center swatch was undisced and unprepared for the seed and due to dry weather conditions the top soil was checkered by huge cracks and a thin spread of fine powder-like dust.

The seed in the swatch, however, found a good supply of moisture underground, moisture not to be easily found under the 400-acre farm site.

Brief investigation of the center swatch indicates a rich supply of moisture at a depth of about two inches. The small sorghum plants have

Our World

Thanks To Our Men

By ANN BROWN

The woman who has not discovered what wonderful creatures men are, has missed one of life's richest blessings. And fathers are men.

Conquering space is just one in a long line of the great achievements that have been wrought by men.

Men were first to carry the gospel around the world. In the wake of the gospel came stable homes to nurture and bring up children. Schools were established to banish ignorance and superstition. Then enlightened men built hospitals to care for the sick and injured, and churches for spiritual fellowship and nourishment.

It was that marvelous man, Thomas Edison who gave us incandescent light, and some 900 other inventions to make life more pleasant.

Henry Ford's inventive genius put poor men in automobiles, which opened up a whole new world for the common people.

Luther Burbank's dedication to the improvement of fruits and vegetables has added health and enjoyment to the eating habits of millions.

Men gave us tender, juicy beef instead of the tough stringy kind that grew naturally. Men have improved pork from fat to red meat, and chickens from long, blue, boney fryers to plump, tender, yellow ones.

Men dug coal out of the hills, and oil and gas out of the ground for our comfort and convenience.

Men built the ships and planes that enable the peoples of the world to share the produce available only in limited areas.

Men grow the food, cut the trees, dig and smelt the ore, and the host of other things that keep the wheels of industry turning.

Men build the houses great and small, which shelter their families from the elements, and give the greatest measure of comfort and security in this world.

Men design and build the miraculous gadgets, which bring so much ease and convenience to women all over the civilized world.

Probably, any wife who wants to be honest will admit a good husband is the most useful article a woman can have in her household.

Why then all the current lack of appreciation and actual disparagement of men by an increasing number of American women?

That question defies a simple answer, but the problem apparently arose when father began to work away from home.

Rural wives and children still seem to appreciate husbands and fathers. They can see the hard work that goes into making a living.

The farm wife can enjoy more companionship with her husband, and the children can profit from the fellowship and discipline of their father. Unfortunately, however, only 4.9 per cent of Americans currently live on farms.

Many tired wives imagine absentee husbands are out enjoying themselves while they slave at home, and wrestle with the children. They are the mothers who constantly threaten their children with, "Just wait til your father gets home!"

Is it surprising that a child, who has a mother who tattles and a father whose only function is to punish, is soon aligned in an active tug of war against both parents?

Everyone learns best by example. If there is seldom or never a father in the home, how is a boy to learn how a husband and father should conduct himself?

And how is a girl to learn how a wife should treat her husband if she has no example to follow?

If men are primarily the leaders of the world, and they are — in the good and the bad, what is the basic function of women? To help the men who protect and support them, and to produce and bring up children.

Any woman, therefore, who does not like men should recall who it is that gives men life, and molds them into whatever they become.

Some genuine gratitude openly expressed would probably do more to improve America's fathers than the most constructive criticism.

Today, while we honor our fathers, let's show appreciation for all our men.

What on earth would we do without them?

The Canyon News:

At renewal time it brings to mind that the Rogers family has been enjoying the Canyon News for a long time. Having land interests in the county we look for articles on the weather and crop prospects. We were glad to see the weekly precipitation reports. Along this line we wonder if you could also give a weekly grain market report. It would be very helpful to us out-of-staters.

Thank you,

Not To Be Outdone

By CARROLL WILSON

We've determined not to be outdone by our large neighbor newspaper to the north.

So we're taking the opportunity through this column to announce our big "4 in 74," "Share The Ride," and "Growing With Canyon," promotional campaign and extravaganza scheduled all day today.

We've decided to throw all three campaigns on one day so we can (1) conserve newspaper space which might otherwise be used to run 249 consecutive stories about the promotion and (2) so we can get it over with before you begin to get the idea that we're just a bunch of nice hometown folks.

Actually, all three campaigns tie in well together in our projected one-day promotion orgy, although all three center on the big, wonderful and smashing "4 in 74" tour.

That's right, folks, it's a tour — but with the Canyon News tour you don't have to have a take-home salary in six figures to join the fun we have planned for you.

In cooperation with our friends and neighbors out at Palo Duro Canyon, we're offering you an unguided, on-your-own tour of the scenic beauty of the state park.

Cost to you is only $1 a carload. And, this is where our "Share The Ride" promotion comes in.

We urge you pile as many buddies in the car as you can get to stretch out those dollars and also to save gasoline on the trip to the canyons.

(If we're invited to Austin to explain our energy-saving plan, we promise, by the way, we won't go. We can't see wasting the energy it would take to get down there, not to mention the energy it would take to explain the promotion.)

While in world-famous Palo Duro Canyon, you can visit yourself such sights as Devil's Slide, the Sad Monkey Railroad or the dank but exciting caves.

What you want to do is what you do on our tour, because you yourself are the guide.

Of course, there'll be an expert on hand at the park to help you if your're lost or can't find the restrooms. He's Elon Baker and we didn't have to import him from anywhere. He's the park superintendent.

Now obviously if we're going to tout our tour as "4 in 74" we're going to have to give you more than one attraction, right?

After leaving Palo Duro Canyon on the first leg of the special Canyon News deluxe, super-individualized promotional tour, we invite you to come to Canyon where you can pursue the other three activities in the "4 in 74."

Again unaided by a guide who'll just want you to see the highlights, you can FREE OF CHARGE view the exhibits and displays at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

The third exciting and spectacular spot on our "4 in 74" tour is the campus of West Texas State University. Again FREE OF CHARGE, you and your family or friends can tour the campus AND NEVER LEAVE THE CONFINES OF YOUR CAR.

On this tour, you'll see such sights as the new administration building, Jones and Cross Halls, and such famous ancient but still-functional ruins as the old administration building and the old science building.

The highlight of the tour, we think, will be involved in our "Growing With Canyon" phase.

In this portion of the "4 in 74" extravaganza, you and your family, as guests of The Canyon News, can sit in Conner Park FREE OF CHARGE and watch the grass "Growing With Canyon."

No reservations are needed for the big Canyon News three-in-one-day promotion.

And we promise this is the last line of news type you're going to see about it.

County To Eye Fire Contract

County commissioners will discuss fire calls for rural areas again Monday when they meet at 1 p.m.

The fire contract with the city of Canyon to provide fire call service to rural areas is almost out for the past year and commissioners will appoint a committee to renegotiate a contract with the city.

Prior to their 1 p.m. meeting, commissioners will travel to Amarillo at 11 a.m. to view final plans for a South Amarillo courthouse annex.

They will meet at the office of Art Vaughan, architect.

In other business, commissioners are expected to give final approval to an updated and altered county personnel policy. The new policy allows commissioners to adjust salaries of employees at any time.

Instructor Taking Teaching Techniques

Canyon High School instructor, Betty J. Brown, will be among those taking instruction on the latest techniques for teaching typing, shorthand, record keeping and office procedure including the new metric system.

The special instruction will be given at the University of Texas Methods Conference for Business Teachers with about 125 business teachers from high schools and colleges throughout Texas attending the conference in Dobie Center at Austin.

Dr. Faborn Etier, UT associate professor of office administration and conference director, says the meeting is designed to improve the quality of business education.

UT's General Business Department and the Industrial and Business Training Bureau of the Division of Extension are co-sponsors of the event.

Among special lecturers will be several authorities:

— Dr. John L. Rowe, Chester Fritz Distinguished Professor at the University of North Dakota who will conduct six sessions on typing instruction. He was 1970 president of the National Association for Teacher Educators for Office and Business Education.

— Dr. Harry Huffman, Colorado State University professor whose fields are record keeping and career mathematics. He is a former president of the National Business Education Association.

— Dr. Ruth I. Anderson, North Texas State University professor who is a past recipient of the John Robert Gregg Award in shorthand.

— Dr. William R. Pasewark, Texas Tech University professor known for his work in procedures and machines courses.

A discussion on business education in the quarter system also is planned by Mrs. Evelyn Kisner, a consultant in the Texas Education Agency.

TV Drawing Going Well, Childs Says

Response to the big Canyon Days Drawing has been tremendous, Chamber of Commerce President John Childs reported this week, at the mid-point in the drawing time period.

Only two weeks remain for residents to sign up with merchants here to win a free color television set and more than 40 other gifts.

Childs said participating merchants report customers are continuing to register for the gifts.

The drawing registration period ends June 29 and that night, the drawing will be held as part of the Canyon Days Celebration.

More than 2000 persons are expected for the festivities connected with the celebration and the drawing, Childs said.

A parade will begin at 5 p.m. on the square in downtown Canyon and will end at Conner Park.

Then, at 6 p.m., a big barbecue dinner prepared by County Judge Woody Pond will be served.

The drawing for the color television and other prizes will be at 7 p.m. at the park.

The World's Championship Pony Express Races begin at 8 p.m. at the Randall County Sheriff's Posse arena just south of Canyon.

Childs said the drawing and month-long registration period was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce to increase customer interest in local merchants shops.

Twenty-five merchants are participating in the drawing.

TEXAS CAST members Robin McKenzie Goodhue and Jerry Williams are shown amidst saddles and hay as they pose prior to the opening of the outdoor drama where they will be among featured performers for the summer of 1974.

'TEXAS' Star Kneads Relaxation

Her eyes sparkle as Robin McKenzie Goodhue takes a welcome break from the vigorous rehearsals of the musical drama "Texas," The attractive brunette breathes deeply, curls up on the sofa and relaxes.

Mrs. Goodhue is cast as Kate, the lusty woman-of-the-world, in Paul Green's musical drama "Texas." She describes the role as, "a delightful part. It is very funny, and I enjoy doing it."

Mrs. Goodhue has been involved in rehearsals on the West Texas State University campus since May 26. The cast of 78 dancers, singers, and actors have been rehearsing eight hours a day, seven days a week, and will continue to do so until opening night, June 19.

The drama will show nightly, except Sunday, until August 24 in the beautiful Pioneer Amphitheatre in colorful Palo Duro Canyon.

A multi-talented individual, Mrs. Goodhue is a unique student of West Texas State University.

"I love to cook," says Mrs. Goodhue. Despite her active involvement in the theatre, she still finds time to cook, crochet, sew and work with clay. Never an idle moment in the day, it is no wonder Mrs. Goodhue occasionally runs into problems. She has found an excellent method for working out those problems.

"I bake my own bread. It's a good way to knead out my frustrations."

Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue are anxiously awaiting the completion of their new house located near Palo Duro Canyon. Their home will provide an appropriate atmosphere for the Goodhues, since they will be spending many hours portraying the history of the canyon this summer.

Although Mrs. Goodhue is a newcomer to the "Texas" cast, she is by no means a newcomer to the stage. She has made many appearances in the Panhandle area, and is known as a veteran actress through her work in the Diamond Horseshoe Theatre and the High Plains Center for the Performing Arts. Mrs. Goodhue has also performed at the Front Street Theatre in Memphis, Tennessee, Okoboji Summer Theatre at Spirit Lake, Iowa, and Colony Katherine near Amarillo.

Mrs. Goodhue's father, Robert H. "Bob" McKenzie, is the founder of the arts crafts complex, Colony Katherine.

Mrs. Goodhue is currently working towards her Masters degree in speech, with a theatre emphasis, at West Texas State University. She completed her undergraduate work in theatre arts at Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri.

While seeking her advanced degree, Mrs. Goodhue has appeared as "Z" in "Village Wooing," Mme. Josephine in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," and Hedda Gabler in "Hedda Gabler."

Teacher Exams Set In July

Fewer than two weeks remain to submit registrations for prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teacher Examinations at West Texas State University on July 20.

Registrations must reach the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, no later than June 27, Dr. Kenneth Waugh, director of the WT Testing and Counseling Center, said.

Bulletins of information describing registration procedures and containing registration forms may be obtained from Dr. Waugh at WTSU, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

At the one-day test session, a candidate may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in Professional Education and General Education, and one of the 24 Area Examinations, which are designed to evaluate his understanding of the subject matter and methods applicable to the area he may be assigned to teach.

Miss Hadley Holds Top Grade Average

Evelyn Frances Hadley of Canyon was among 6,341 students achieving a 3.0 or better grade point average for the 1974 spring semester at the University of Oklahoma in Norman, Okla.

In addition to the 3.0 minimum grade point average, a student must be enrolled in a minimum of 12 credit hours and must not have a "failing" or "unsatisfactory" mark in any course to be listed on the university's honor roll.

Judge Happy With Article

County Judge Woody Pond pronounced Thursday the finally-adopted judiciary article in the revised Texas Constitution as "better than they started out with."

Delegates to the constitutional convention finished up work on the controversial judiciary article last week, an article which caused Pond and several county commissioners to travel to Austin to protest.

The finalized judiciary article says county courts-at-law may be established by the legislature. The former article had said the legislature "shall" establish county courts-at-law.

Pond said he feels he can "live with the article."

With the completion of the judiciary article, delegates turned to the final drafting of the various articles which will make up the document to be presented the public in a future election.

State Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo is chairman of the style and drafting committee, which has been putting the articles in final language.

Teacher Has Interesting Past In Cuban Society

Miguel Tarrab has been teaching mathematics at West Texas State University since 1967. He had his first university teaching assignment in 1945 in his native Cuba. What sets him apart from his colleagues is the story of his life between those two dates.

Before making a decision to defect to the United States in 1967, Mike Tarrab was among the most trusted of Fidel Castro's lieutenants in the world of international high finance.

In the pre-revolution days of the late '50s, Tarrab served as a representative of the Cuban National Association of Sugar Producers. The post carried diplomatic credentials and a prestigious base of operations in London.

In 1959, Castro smashed the remnants of Fulgencio Batista's shaky reign, and Tarrab's duties changed subtly. He still represented the interest of Cuba's sugar producers in the world market, but had new superiors: Castro and his brother-in-law, Che Guevara.

Tarrab first met Castro in April of 1959:

"He has a magnetic personality; chrisma at its best. He is really hard-working and very intelligent. He has the ability to grasp the most difficult of ideas quickly. Of course, this is supplemented by a tremendous ambition. It is a pity that he has selected the Communist role. Many believe his nation would have been a show place of underdeveloped countries had he decided to adopt free enterprise."

Tarrab had another meeting with Castro, just before his decision to defect:

"He was very tired; very bitter in 1964. Fidel was full of optimism when I first met with him," says Tarrab, "but he had grown cynical and mistrustful over the years; he was a broken man, but still very resentful of criticism."

Tarrab's first meeting with the legendary Che was also in 1959. He worked with the Argentine doctor-turned-revolutionary repeatedly throughout the next seven years. He remembers one comical incident while he and Guevara were in Geneva for an international/economic conference:

"Guevara slept very little. He would wait for me to return from conferences early in the morning and then have me brief him on the proceedings. Naturally, two o'clock in the morning didn't seem a good time to talk business, and Guevara chided me for sleeping too much."

Tarrab's life as a diplomat was full of snares set by everybody from Castro and Guevara down through the country's diplomatic corps.

Tarrab was not directly responsible to any one in the government. Instead, he represented the interests of the nationalized sugar industry. Often, he had to lie about his presence in a particular location to keep the diplomats from interfering with his work.

That kind of pressure, plus the growing realization that Cuba was being forced to accept the second rate goods the Communist bloc couldn't market anywhere else, tipped the balance for Mike Tarrab.

"I knew by 1966 I couldn't help my people any more. The growing frustration was making an old man out of me. I had to get out. It was that simple and that difficult."

Part of the difficulty was in Tarrab's personal financial situation. He owned small properties in both England and Cuba. The hardest part of the decision involved his family.

"The question of losing your property," says Tarrab, "is not as serious as the reality that you will never be able to see your relatives again." Tarrab's mother and sister were left behind in Cuba.

That is difficult to take. Added to it: those you leave behind are harassed for the defection of a relative or friend. Mail is withheld, ration books are lost, and communication with the outside world is forbidden. Tarrab didn't correspond with his relatives for almost a full year after his decision to leave the Castro regime. Tarrab's sister is now in the U.S.

All those facts weighed heavily on Mike Tarrab. But, in the spring of 1966 he decided to make the break. He describes what happened during the last two days in England:

"During the night, I was called by the security chief at the Cuban embassy. He told me to report to the embassy. A chill ran through me. How did they know I was going to leave? I had only discussed it with my wife. What would happen if I left our house? Would I ever come back?"

For the last time, Mike Tarrab pulled the cloak of diplomatic privilege about him:

"I told them I was sick to my stomach because of some strange food I'd eaten. The next morning, I told them I was going to be in secret meetings with some economists from Communist countries."

The system Mike Tarrab had grown to hate so much worked to his advantage that time. No one dared interrupt the counterfeit meetings for fear of reprisals from Havana. He reinforced the story several times during the day by calling the embassy to report on the fictious meeting. Between calls, he and his wife and daughter were frantically preparing their escape. His last phone report was from London's Heathrow Airport, just before he boarded a plane for Washington.

"Suddenly, I felt free for the first time in many years." That's the way Miguel Tarrab describes his arrival on American soil. "You realize: 'Why, why didn't I do this before.' "

Collins Services Set For Monday

Paul Talbot Collins, age 77, 2617 3rd Ave., was dead on arrival at Neblett Memorial Hospital Thursday at 1 p.m.

Cottonwood Grove Services In Park

Bill Mooney of the Texas Highway Department will deliver the Sunday morning worship service at the Cottonwood Grove services held in Palo Duro Canyon.

Services begin at 11 a.m. at the Cottonwood Grove, which is just beyond the fifth water crossing in the floor of the canyons. The unusual services are open to the public and are especially designed to include park visitors and personnel there on Sundays.

advisor to the city, that the route on future issuance of certificates of obligation was taken.

"In reviewing the interest market at this time it is Mr. Davis's feeling that it would be wise for the city to issue certificates of obligation throughout the project's construction, maintaining municipal funds in certificates of deposit," he said. "We can currently invest funds at 7½ to 8¼ per cent, depending on the market."

The certificates of obligation can be redeemed at a rate of interest of 6¼ per cent, he said, and the difference in interest rates plus the fact that the certificates are issued in series means the city can offset interim financing charges.

Bryan stressed that the funds used to pay for the construction will be exactly as advertised prior to a recent special election on the construction.

The city will still use a portion of funds from the water and sewer fund along with funds from the general fund and federal revenue sharing money to finance the bulk of the building.

"When all is said and done," the mayor said, "the certificates of obligation will have paid for about $200,000 of the project."

That $200,000 will be a short-term debt of the city.

"As we've said before," Mayor Bryan stressed, "this will not raise or change taxes."

In other business, commissioners voted to advertise for bids for demolition of the current city hall annex, which now houses the Canyon Police Department.

Police activities will center in an old brick building just south of the community center when destruction of the old annex begins to make way for construction of the new city hall.

Commissioners will not meet as regularly scheduled in a meeting Monday night.

Directors of the show are Mr. and Mrs. William A. Moore. Neil Hess is choreographer, James Kemmerling is technical director, and Raymond Raillard is general manager.

The brainchild of Paul Green, Pulitzer-Prize winning author, "TEXAS" centers on the struggle between the small farmers and the large cattle barons of the early-day Texas Panhandle.

Survey. . .

final set has gone to local businessmen.

Each survey form differs to a degree, but each asks the respondents to give opinions on whether they desire Canyon to stay a small town, whether they desire active courting of industry for the city, whether they feel tourism is important to the economy of Canyon and what they see Canyon's 1980 population to be.

In addition, there are several fact questions Hanks asks in the surveys, questions which should hold the most interest for the chamber and businessmen.

Hanks asks each survey group how much of their income they spend in Canyon and outside of Canyon. He asks them why they shop outside of Canyon and what local businessmen can do to keep business in the city. He also asks them to specify which specific retail businesses they leave Canyon to shop with.

About one-third of the surveys have been returned to Hanks and he revealed the general trend at this point on some key questions.

What do the people of Canyon feel is most needed in terms of retail outlets?

The surveys indicate they want more clothing stores here.

Why do they shop in Amarillo?

Because, Hanks says the trend indicates, respondents feel prices are lower on items in Amarillo and there is more selection of goods there.

Hanks said the surveys received so far indicate rural respondents are somewhat critical of Canyon businessmen.

"They don't feel they're competing with Amarillo, the prices are high and that they should be more competitive," Hanks said. "They also say clean-up the square and get the stores out of the 1930s syndrome."

Hanks said respondents to the business firm survey indicate they are interested in attracting industry to Canyon and that they are experiencing an increase in the number of people shopping here who do not live in Canyon.

Hanks warned that the trends now developing could change as more surveys are returned.

He noted an apparent paradox in the survey results. He said respondents generally say they want industry to come to Canyon, but also desire to keep Canyon a small town.

He will also conduct personal interviews with local business and governmental leaders for the thesis.

Hanks said anyone interested in giving opinions for his survey or for an interview, should contact him through WTSU Box 5, Canyon 79016.

able for expenditure during the year. A total of $32,000 went into law enforcement and about $170,000 went to purchase the South Amarillo future annex site.

In an analysis of expenses for salaries and office equipment for each elected official's office, the audit indicates that expenditures rose across the board during the year.

In 1972, the sheriff's office spent the most in terms of salaries and expenses. In 1973 that office was surpassed in disbursements by the county tax office.

The audit reports that in 1973, the office of Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector, cost the county $146,663 to maintain. That compares with a 1972 expense figure for the office of $109,707.

Sheriff's office expenses rose by about $5000 during 1973 over 1972. In 1973 the expenses were $123,987.26 and in 1972 they were $118,503.

Office expenses for other officials remained static or rose only slightly.

Sorghum. . .

already extended roots well into the moisture-bearing subsoil.

"I think we'll get a better stand here than we will down at the other end," Ferguson said, standing in the center of the psuedo-field.

Ferguson said without weed competition and with the prevalence of abundant subsurface moisture, the plants should grow well.

Weeds will be a major problem to the stand at the more southern end, however, and coupled with light spring moisture so far could be the death of that crop.

While a good stand of sorghum may come up in the center swatch, Ferguson said he doubts the crop can be harvested due to the unstable nature of the soil. With moisture and lots of it at a strata very near the surface, tractors and other machinery would have a difficult time trying to harvest, he said.

Ferguson said the four farmers who have gone in together to farm the 400 acres may decide not to pursue the sorghum crop in that area and may, rather, plant a winter wheat crop next fall.

In the meantime, the planting is accomplishing the purpose Ferguson had in mind all along. The plants, whether weeds or sorghum, will extract from the lake bottom the nutrients which have caused the lake to become less than desirable and less than liveable for fish and other water-type creatures.

While the crops are growing to the south and center, lake workers continue building a dike to span the lake and to back up water on the south end for use by waterfowl.

Ferguson said the dike is almost completed and workers expect to start soon on construction of a canal to channel water from the southern portion behind the dike to downstream areas below the north dam.

They also plan to construct several islands in the southern portion for use by waterfowl for nesting and resting.

Blood Pressure Testing June 29

A free blood pressure clinic will be held Saturday, June 29, at Conner Park in Canyon under the sponsorship of the Canyon-Randall unit of the American Heart Association.

The blood pressure testing will begin at 5 p.m. with Virginia Cotton of the local AHA unit in charge of planning.

Home Needing Buttons

La Casa Canyon Nursing Home has requested that persons who have old beads, buttons and other small items for crafts and projects bring these items to the nursing home for the use of the elderly patients there. Additional information will be provided at the nursing home by Mrs. Williams, 655-4352.

Mrs. Joan Land is new operator of JK Secretarial Service in Canyon, one of the city's newest businesses. The service will provide all secretarial help for local businessmen and students. The office is at 22nd and 4th Avenue.

New Business Features All Secretary Needs

Canyon's newest business is J.K. Secretarial Service at 22nd and 4th Avenue.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Land, the service will be operated by Mrs. Land, a legal secretary for about 20 years.

The service, which offers complete secretarial needs including photo-copying machines, mimeographing machines and dictating service, has been open since Monday.

Mrs. Land said she will also offer typing service for term papers, theses and other manuscripts.

Coupled with the opening of the secretarial service, Land has also expanded his retail business, Ken's Hamburgers, to include seating for 50.

The expansion project, which will also include installation of a drive-up window, should be concluded by July 1, he said.

The Lands were in Canyon for six years while Ken completed college work before moving to Colorado. They recently returned to the city and Mrs. Land is currently a freshman at WTSU studying art.

LA CASA CANYON Nursing Home residents, Mrs. Grace Shaeffer and Charlie Sutton receive an assist in "finding the bingo numbers" from Tracy Mingus.

Bingo Recreation To Home's Family

"A simple game of Bingo is their favorite," said Mrs. Stelcie Williams, director of a game participation program being conducted at LaCasa Canyon Nursing Home, 2623 12th Avenue, in Canyon.

Although Bingo is played with oversize cards and soft drink bottle caps, it is a lot of fun to the elderly persons who reside at the home. They are treated to small prizes given by local merchants as their cards fill with blacked out numbers in the afternoon recreation period.

Mrs. Williams, who is directing the program and several other recreation and rehabilitation projects at the nursing home, said that about 20 hours is given each week to recreational activities for the residents there.

Included in the rehabilitation segment of the program, bed patients are given exercise also. Other games included in the recreation include checkers, dominoes, and even darts at balloons and a sunporch basketball game occasionally.

The nursing home presently has 31 residents. They are often entertained by volunteer groups from local churches or singing groups who desire to present a brief program for the oldsters, according to Mrs. Williams.

Several residents of the home including Vera Osborne, Lula Miller and Minnie Starkey spend a portion of their days making quilt-tops, stringing beads for necklaces and embroidering pillowcases.

The crafts projects done by residents at the home are offered for the general public to purchase in the main lounge of the home. The modest fee charged goes to each individual for their future projects and many items are donated to the home to be used in this manner.

Presently the home is needing pearls to string and buttons to be used as eyes for stuffed toys later. Residents who have such items to contribute may do so by contacting Mrs. Williams at the home.

Action Fills Last Days Before Opening

The last days before the opening of "TEXAS" are filled with action.

Crews are working at the theatre in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park — cutting weeds, raking, picking up, painting, getting ready for the opening on Wednesday. They are putting chairs in place, putting legs on new ones, taking weak ones away, fastening them together — recovering from the wind a few days ago which piled them up like matchsticks.

Most evening rehearsals have moved to the canyon amphitheatre, adapting the movements from the 30-foot stage in the Branding Iron Theatre on the campus of West Texas State where they hold early practices to the 90-foot opening in the canyon.

William A. Moore, the director, sits in a different place in the theatre at each rehearsal, checking sight lines, entrances, exits, the flow of the performance.

Margaret Echols Moore, the associate director, sits in the back row, listening. "I didn't hear your third phrase," she says. "Direct your voices toward the audience. Even though the acoustics here are perfect, you have to project to be clearly understood."

Royal Brantley, the musical director is also in the back, conducting just a few feet below his usual place in the light booth. "When you turned, to get into the fifth position, you left the dotted notes out. Do it again. Orchestra, you will have a panel behind you. Turn your instruments toward the cast so that they will hear you better."

During the day, Brantley is making test tapes and final tapes for the dream scene and for the musical backgrounds and in some cases for publicity tapes. "Listen for the endings of your words. Unless you use great care, final 's' will disappear and the word 'Texas' sounds odd without it."

The Moores are also concerned with the tapes. This year Uncle Henry is played by a new actor, Dennis Sook of the National Shakespere Theatre. Calvin Armstrong is also new (Don Washburn who has distinguished himself in many area productions. For this reason, the dream sequence must be recorded with their voices.

Neil Hess, the choreographer, works on the stage of the Branding Iron Theatre on the WT campus. He starts the day with warm-ups for the whole cast. They can move faster now and are in better shape than they were in the first days of rehearsal in May. Each day he adds routines which will be used somewhere in the show. The overtures have been choreographed and the company works them over and over, increasing precision, changing tempo until on opening night they will almost be second nature. Later in the day, he works through one dance after another, drilling on the movements of the flag bearers, presenting new choreography for the plum pickers, introducing ways to make the fire dancers more frightening.

In the costume room, Charlotte Brantley, the costumer, fits, checks on problems her workers are having, makes shopping trips for materials for last minute changes. The blue jeans and shirts, boots and hats have been ordered and assigned. She has new designs for the plum pickers, and many new dresses throughout the show. As it happens, the cast members this year seem to be very different sizes from the people who had the same parts last year. This involves renovating and taking up and letting out. Mrs. Brantley and her crew have made 30 new costumes already this year and have 15 to go for opening. Another 15 will be added during the show. She also concerns herself with laundry schedules, costume care, repairs and changes. Some members of the company make eight changes during a performance.

At the theatre the technical director, Jim Kemmerling and his crew, are touching up old sets, reinforcing, repainting. In this last few days they are gathering up the necessary props: a list ten pages long, single spaced.

The sound and light crew have just finished installing a new sound control board and are now working with it. They will soon be climbing over the face of the cliff which faces the stage, putting the lighting in place.

The horse wrangler, Dan Steele, and the horsemen are working with the horses, acquainting them with the routines, practicing with them in the lights.

And on Wednesday evening, the ninth season of "TEXAS" will begin. Over 586,000 have already seen this show, and more than a third of these people have come more than once.

Teacher Is Instructing

A Vocational-industrial teacher from Canyon is among the 210 participating in special teacher certification courses at Southwest Texas State University this summer. The program opened June 3 and will run through July 9.

The local teacher participating in the program is Harold L. Hagemeier of Box 504. He is employed at Canyon High School where he teaches vocational building trades. This is his second summer to attend the program as a visiting instructor.

Southwest Texas is the fourth university in Texas to offer the vocational-industrial certification courses, required by the Texas Education Agency.

Upon meeting one of the initial entry requirements, a prospective Texas vocational teacher may enter the field with an emergency teaching certificate good for one year. At the end of the year, he must attend classes during summer school at one of the four approved colleges and complete three certification courses, after which he may be issued another emergency certificate. The following summer, he will take three more courses. After teaching two years and having completed all six of the special courses and a three-hour government course, he is granted a provisional certificate by the agency.

Feed Research Underway At WTSU

Beef cattle raisers may enjoy up to a 10 per cent increase in returns per cow through feed additive research with an artificial amino acid, methionine hydroxy calcium analog (MHA), presently underway at West Texas State University.

Funded through a $4,000 grant from the DuPont Corp., the WTSU School of Agriculture is midway in their project to determine the effects of the amino acid on beef cattle milk production, with the ultimate goal of increasing calf weight at weaning time.

"We hope there will be from a 10-20 pound increase in the calf weight," noted Dr. Don Beerwinkle, WTSU agriculture professor and project coordinator. This amino acid is already being used successfully in the poultry and the dairy cattle industry."

For the last two days, the six-man team, including Dr. Larry Varner from the Texas A&M Extension Service in Uvalde, have been milking the 180-cow test herd. It is the regular University teaching herd of Angus and Hereford cows.

"We will be looking at the total milk production, the fat and protein content, and other solid content of the milk," Beerwinkle said. The cows and calves will be weighed Saturday, June 15, to determine calf weight gains to this point.

The project begun in mid-March will be completed sometime in October at the first weighing. The cows and calves have been given daily doses of MHA in portions of 0, 5, 10 and 20 grams. This is the only milk they will receive.

Readin' And Writin'

By LORENA MILLER

Father's Day is today, and special tributes should be paid to all our dads whether young or old, on this a special day which has been set aside in their honor.

Read recently that the original "father" for Father's Day was the father of Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane, Washington who got the idea for the observance while listening to her minister deliver a sermon relating to motherhood. Unlikely as it may seem, Mrs. Dodd's mother had died young, and her father had proceeded to raise the family and she noted his sacrifices in a letter to the Spokane Ministerial Association where she proposed a "day in honor of fathers."

So in our own way we all take our hats off to fathers across the nation on this their special day. And singer Loretta Lynn belts out a song which is truly appropriate for father's day "They Don't Make 'Em Like My Daddy Anymore" which we had the privilege of hearing her sing at the Amarillo Civic Center in her performance there this spring.

Coming up this week at the Civic Center is a giant sell-out performance for singer Elvis Presley. Although we didn't get tickets ordered in time, it reminds me of his first performance on the "Louisiana Hay-Ride" which is broadcast out of Shreveport, Louisiana. I happened to hear that first show from the Louisiana Hayride and along with many other teenagers of that day got my first sight of Elvis on the Ed Sullivan television show one Sunday evening.

And while we speak of "music," it was announced just recently that country music's Charlie Pride will perform at the Tri-State Fair again this year.

"I catch more fish when ole Charlie sings to them from the bank or boat" was a statement given by a local fisherman — and guess it's true, he always seems to catch a lot of fish when he finds time to get a hook in the water.

Oh yes, appearing along with Country Charlie Pride at the Tri-State Fair shows this year will be Charlie Rich "behind closed doors," Mel Tillis and Tanya Tucker still hunting "mama's name."

Survey On Family To Be Conducted

Young wives 18 to 24 years old expected to have an average of 2.3 children as reported in a Bureau of the Census survey in 1973, down from 2.4 in 1971 and 2.9 in 1967. Is this desire for smaller families continuing in 1974 or not?

Percy R. Millard, Director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Dallas, announced today that a survey in this area will help to answer the question. Information on the number of children families plan to have within the next 5 years will be collected here the week of June 17-21 from a sample of households. Responses from the nationwide survey will provide data on the future growth rate and composition of the U.S. population, data vital to planners in government and private business.

The questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted by the Census Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor. The results are used to calculate the number of persons with jobs, the number looking for jobs, and the monthly percentage of unemployment, which is regarded as one of the most important measures of the Nation's economic health.

The April survey showed that the Nation's unemployment rate was 5.0 per cent; it had been 5.2 per cent in January and February and 5.1 per cent in March. Total employment at 85.8 million was essentially unchanged from March. It has been at about this level since October 1973.

Facts supplied by individuals participating in the survey are kept strictly confidential by law, and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Family Togetherness Benefit Of Fuel Lack

"How" the energy crisis will change family life concerns authorities more than the question, "Will it?" one expert said this week.

She's Dorthy Taylor, specialist in family life education, Texas Agricultural Extension Servcie, The Texas A&M University System.

"Some authorities predict the isis may help strengthen nily relations, ties and underanding," she observed.

"Usually a family gets its oals from national standards — and its values and activities from relatives, the church, school or other organizations. In turn, the family adapts these for itself.

"Because the energy crisis is making families more homebound, the time is ripe for a renewal of family togetherness.

"For example, now families can choose activities that interested them earlier but were set aside when life became so busy," the specialist said.

"This is a prime time to revitalize family-centered recreation."

Because of less frequent, or shorter-spanned travel, families will stay home more, and they'll look for recreation with other family members rather than outsiders, she noted.

"Table games — including chess, checkers and cards — exemplify some forms of family recreation.

"Stimulating sports like touch football, badminton and folk dancing offer additional possibilities.

"Some family members prefer to spend leisure time doing volunteer work — teaching and sharing skills and ideas with 4-H clubs or other youth groups.

"Still others' interests lie in studies. Such people study together to broaden their horizons through home study courses, craft classes or simply exploring their interests."

Sharing in reading, writing, home repairs and gardening also will experience renewed interest, the specialist predicted.

"Indeed, we can expect changes within families as a result of the energy crisis.

"But through choosing a course of action for its new leisure and family togetherness, a family can avoid making this a time of extreme boredom," she concluded.

Four Canyon girls will be members of a ballet group presented in recital at the Canyon Junior High School auditorium June 22 at 8:15 p.m. Members of the group are Jill Burton, Anne Miller, Susan Bonnifield, Kim Bowers, all of Canyon, and Ann Davis, of Amarillo. King Participating In College Program

Wayne King is among seventy-one outstanding high school seniors from 25 states who will get their first taste of college academics Monday when they begin taking part in Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology's annual Operation Catapult program.

King is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. King, Jr. of Rt. 1, Box 165, Canyon.

Started in 1967, Operation Catapult is a unique incentive program which provides top high school students with the opportunity to investigate problems of engineering and science not normally undertaken at the high school level.

A total of 142 students will participate in the program which has been expanded to two sessions this summer due to the increase in the interest of high school students toward careers in engineering.

This summer's participants come from a broader geographic area than at any time since the program began. Students from as far away as California, Arizona, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Maryland will attend the three and one-half week summer program.

With full enrollments in both sessions of Operation Catapult, Rose-Hulman has reversed a national trend that has seen most colleges having difficulty with declining enrollments in many programs.

Major features of the summer program are the individual attention given each student by members of the Rose-Hulman faculty and the emphasis which is placed on a practical problem-solving approach, including extensive laboratory work and group discussions in the areas of engineering, science and mathematics.

Prof. Alfred R. Schmidt, a professor of mathematics for more than 20 years, is director of the program. Other members of the Catapult faculty include Dr. Oran M. Knudsen, professor of chemistry; Dr. Bruce R. Danner, associate professor of physics and Donald G. Morin, assistant professor of mechanical engineering.

The first session of Operation Catapult will end on July 4. The second session of the summer program will begin July 7 and end on Aug. 1.

Wayne Robinson and Andy Grimes started in the linebacker positions for the Canyon Eagles this past season. After the second game both boys were hurt and out of their starting roles. When football season starts again this fall, both will be back in their starting roles according to Ron Mills, head football coach.

The cause of Grimes' injury will have graduated. Following the first game of the season, during a Tuesday workout, Grimes was tackled by his older brother. The younger Grimes suffered a broken leg.

Robinson was injured following the second game.

Tom Grimes, older brother of Andy, graduated this spring and will play for a junior college in Oklahoma this next season. While at CHS, he was named All-District linebacker.

Robinson, who also throws discus for the CHS track team, stands 5 feet 9 inches and weighs 180 pounds. He has gained 20 pounds over last season's weight. He is helping relatives on their farm during the summer months.

Grimes stands 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 170. He had gained only 10 pounds prior to the end of the school year. Grimes, along with several other members of the football squad, is taking ballet lessons this summer. The lessons were suggested by the CHS coaching staff. According to Mills, they hope to increase the agility of the players through these lessons. The lessons are being taught by a ballet instructor here in Canyon.

There are two other prospective linebackers, Kenny Baysinger and Rusty Holliday. Holliday, who has appeared in this column before, will play offensive halfback and defensive linebacker or defensive end.

Baysinger, who stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 175 pounds, is also backup fullback for the Eagles. During this next season, Baysinger will play against a Caprock High School team coached by his dad.

Canyon High has not hired a line coach for the coming season. The one they find must not only be an offensive and defensive line coach but he must also be able to teach history.

V.J. Duncan will again coach the backs and ends for the offense and the defensive linebackers and ends. Gary Conner will coach the defensive secondary and help with the offensive backs.

Of all the major colleges and universities in the state of Texas, West Texas State did not sign a Texas player to its basketball squad. WTSU, along with other NCAA schools, is allowed to sign only six players each year. This is the first year for this rule to be in effect.

Girl's softball is in full swing. The biggest conversation on the diamond may be the rule change coming about in Little League allowing girls to play on Little League baseball teams. Three members of one of the girl's softball teams, left to right, Celia Cotton, Vickie Runyan and Lori Slack, talk about the possibility of playing Little League baseball with the boys.

Canyon Girls Not Interested In Playing Little League

An announcement made by the board and trustees of the Little League Foundation that allows girls to play Little League baseball has not stirred up any interest in Canyon.

Though he has not yet received official word from Little League headquarters in Williamsport, Pa., Dee Nix said that girls would get their first chance to try out for Little League ball this next season if the rule change is made.

Nix said "It is no big deal about the rule change here." Nix feels that girls entering Little League will bring no changes in the program both on the national and the local levels.

He said that in Canyon no girls had asked to play Little League this past year.

On a personal note, Nix said that it would not bother him anymore to have a girl out play one of his sons than for a boy to out play him.

In a random sampling of girls who participate in the girls' softball program, there was very little interest in playing baseball with the boys. Of those asked only one girl, Sharon Castleberry, said that she might play baseball but that she liked softball better. When asked if she could compete with the boys, she said, "I won't know till I try."

Celia Cotton said that it would be fun to try out for Little League baseball but probably would not because it was more fun to watch the game than to play.

Vickie Runyan said that she had watched several Little League games and the boys were not as good as the girls. Vickie thought that the coaches would be prejudiced against girls and think that boys were better players.

Lori Slack said that girls would be at a disadvantage in playing baseball with the boys. She said that girls who had been playing softball would find it hard to change from softball to baseball. Lori thinks that girls are faster than the boys and would have a good chance to make the team.

Two Thin Clads Sign With WTSU

Paducah sprinter Carl Wright and Kerrville's Mike Parman, a weightman, have signed athletic scholarship agreements with West Texas State University track coach Bob Kitchens.

Wright is the younger brother of current West Texas State sprint ace Alvis Wright. The older brother ran a wind-aided 9.3 clocking this past spring in his freshman season.

Parman, 6-2½ and 205, placed sixth in the Class AAA division of the state track meet in the discus. He had a best of 167-6½ in the discus and put the shot 54-8½.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parman put the shot 50-0 as a sophomore and hurled the discus 135. He improved to 53-feet in the shot and 160-feet in the discus as a junior.

"Mike is an outstanding prospect for two reasons — he has good quickness and he has a large frame which will carry more weight and strength," said Kitchens.

A B average student in the classroom, Parman earned all-district, All-West Texas and Super Cen-Tex honors this past fall in football as a fullback.

Wright was also a standout football and basketball player at Paducah. He earned all-state honors in both football, as a halfback and split end, and in basketball this past year. He was a four-year all-district selection in basketball.

The 5-9, 160-pounder reached the state meet for the past two seasons in the 100-yard dash. He failed to place in the 100 as a junior in the state meet, but was sixth this past spring. He ran 9.8 in the 100 both his junior and senior years. His best 220 time is 22.0.

Wright, who also carries a B average in the classroom, was named Mr. Paducah High School his junior year.

"Carl got a late start in track this past season because the basketball team went to the state meet," said Paducah coach Tommy Davis. "His start in the 100 is tremendous, but he needs to relax during the final 15 or 20 yards and that will come with experience."

Funk Scholarship Fund Established

A scholarship fund, in memory of professional wrestler Dory Funk, Sr., has been established at West Texas State University.

The Dory Funk Senior Memorial Fund was announced at a Thursday news conference. The fund will be administered over by a three-man committee.

Funk, who died in June of 1973 at an Amarillo hospital of a heart attack, had lived in the Panhandle area since 1949. Most of the time he resided at Umbarger.

The fund will be used to provide scholarship money to prospective WTSU students exhibiting "personal integrity, achievement, leadership and humility."

Athletic ability on the part of the scholarship candidates is desired, but not required.

The members of the committee are Jim Young, Muleshoe rancher; Tom Christian, rancher and banker from Claude, and Amarillo Globe-News sports writer Putt Powell.

Funk, who was born in Hammond, Ind., was graduated from the University of Indiana. During his final year in college he was named to the Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Following service in the Navy during World War II, he became a professional wrestler.

Shortly after his arrival in Amarillo Funk was asked by the late Cal Farley to become the ranch superintendent at Boys Ranch. The wrestler stayed for three years and was later credited by Farley for regaining lost discipline at the ranch.

When Funk left the ranch the boys lined the road to bid him farewell and there were tears in many eyes.

Funk later told Powell, "If the road had been any longer, I would never have left the ranch."

Funk's two sons — Dory Junior and Terry — are now professional wrestlers. Dory Junior held the world heavyweight wrestling championship for several years.

"My father was a gambler," said Terry at the news conference. "He liked to find someone who needed help to become a success and to provide that help."

Contributions to the Dory Funk Senior Memorial Fund, or candidates for consideration can be sent to Box 909, WT Station, Canyon, Texas.

Boeka To Play In NCAA Golf Tourney

West Texas State University senior Jerry Boeka will play June 19-22 in the NCAA Golf Championships at Carlton Oaks Country Club in San Diego, Calif.

Boeka qualified for the meet by winning medalist honors at the Missouri Valley Conference tournament in Denton May 18-19.

At the MVC meet Boeka recorded rounds of 70, 72 and 67 for a one-under-par 209 total. He paced the Buffaloes to a fourth place finish in the tourney. Boeka played in the NCAA Championships last summer in Stillwater, Okla., and recorded rounds of 73 and 74, but failed to make the 36-hole cutoff mark by a stroke.

The Amarillo senior and coach Vern Farquhar will leave Sunday for San Diego. Practice rounds are scheduled Monday and Tuesday before the 72-hole tourney opens Wednesday, June 19.

In 18 competitive rounds of golf this spring Boeka averaged 74.1 strokes per round. He won medalist honors at the Trinity University Invitational in San Antonio and was also the low individual in the Big Spring, Tex., Collegiate Invitational.

352 Enrolled For Summer Recreation Program

Three hundred fifty two people are enrolled in the Summer Recreation Program in Canyon. The program will start June 17. All classes except swimming will be held on the WTSU campus. Swimming will be held at the city swimming pool.

Interest in arts and crafts has increased this year according to A. J. Luquette. Luquette said that more classes would have to be added.

The schedule for golf has been changed. Golf will be held at 11 a.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. There are 18 signed up for golf.

There will be five Water Safety Instructors for the swimming classes to be held this year. The largest class will have 40 students. Lessons will be on an individual basis as much as possible.

There are two instructors in twirling-cheerleading and two in children's theatre.

There is one instructor in archery for the 14 who have signed up.

Few Summer Jobs For Students

Jobs for high school students during the summer in Canyon are small in number, according to a survey made by The Canyon News.

The largest employer for the summer is the Youth Employment Program which is designed under the guideline of the program for disadvantaged youth. There are 30 students in Canyon who are participating in the program. In Randall County, there are 160 young people involved.

Young people in the Youth Employment Program work with summer recreation, T-Anchor low rent housing, the Panhandle-Plains Museum, soil conservation service and with the maintenance department at the junior high school.

Farm labor in the county is confined to those living on the farm according to the county agent.

McDonald's Restaurant employs 12 high school students for this summer. They also have six 1974 graduates employed.

Hunsley Hills has several high school boys employed.

There are other businesses in Canyon that employ only one to three high school students. Among the businesses interviewed, when a student is given a job he has first choice for the job the next summer. Thus cutting down the availability of jobs for one to three years. If the student attends WTSU, that time could be extended.

Several of the county and city jobs are on a work-study program with WTSU.

The city has hired 10 students for the summer. Four young ladies were hired to work at the swimming pool according to George Loudder, city manager. Six boys have been employed. They will work in assisting the fire department in maintenance, assist the park recreation department, assist the street and sanitation department and the water department.
